Conflicting Ideals Must Be Settled

Callard States That Both Sides Have Weapons, Both Anxious For Security

Nuclear control is impossible at the present time; we first need to narrow the ideological conflicts between the two blocs.

So stated Professor Keith Callard in a Debating Union talk and panel discussion on disarmament held yesterday at noon.

Professor Callard went on to explain that in 1946 the United States had the nuclear weapons, while Russia had the land forces, Consequently Russia feared disarmament as impeding their knowledge af atomic energy. Today both sides have weapons, and both want security first, then equality.

"We are afraid of Russian military power and want time to catch up," said Phil de Zwirek, a member of the Panel. "Proposals in the UN and the Subcommittee on Disarmament have failed because neither side has any faith in the other."

According to Professor Callard, present propositions would include restrictions on specific nuclear weapons and demilitarization of certain geographical areas. Inspection of atomic resources is not valid because only tests, not stockpiles, can be detected.

Demilitarization such as that advocated by George Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Russia, would be of unknown value to both East and West, according to Brahm Campbell. Zafar Khan added that Kennan's proposal was worth considering, but that secrecy should be maintained in disarmament talks. Campbell replied that conferences already held and kept secret have not been successful.

"The West is bankrupt in policy", he said. "We need revitalization of the Disarmament Committee and the Subcommittee on Disarmament."

Phil Belitsky was chairman of the discussion.

Industrial Expert Speaks In Union On Management

Mr. Jack Howlett will address the McGill Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management today.

His talk will be given at 8 pm in the Union Ballroom.

After serving in the Canadian Infantry Corps during the Second World War, Mr. Howlett joined Canadian Marconi in 1948 in a programming capacity with the Company's Radio Station CFCF. A few years later, he was appointed Production Supervisor for CFCF and subsequently he became Program Manager. In the spring of last year, Mr. Howlett became the Assistant Manager of the Industrial Relations Division at Canadian Marconi.

Mr. Howlett is a Director of the Canadian Industrial Trainers' Association and a Seminar Leader in Executive Selection for the American Management Association. Cokes and donuts will be served at the meeting. All students are invited to attend.

Knowles Predicts Election In Spring

TORONTO (CUP) — Stanley Knowles M.P., speaking in a debate at the University of Toronto, prophesied a Dominion election not later than April.

Mr. Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North, was supporting the resolution." The CCF is the only logical alternative to the present federal government".

He expects Diefenbaker to take the initiative after Pearson's "thoroughly undemocratic move" in asking for a Liberal Government without a general election.

Knowles further predicted that the Conservatives would win the next election, but would still lack a majority.

Culture Ignored In This Dynamic Day

Emphasis On Production; Artists Lack Support And Prestige, States Chasins

"Today the intellectual is regarded by the few with respect. The rest call him "Egghead"; for their norms are power and money."

So spoke Mr. Abram Chasins, noted pianist, composer, and author-critic last night in Moyse Hall.

Addressing an audience of over 200, Mr. Chasins went on to say, "What I actually believe is that music is a symbol — a symbol of all the emotional, spiritual, and intellectual forces that make this world worth living and fighting for, and that while history is in the making, history itself is often ignored."

The topic of his talk was "The Place of Music and Musicians in a Nuclear Age." Mr. Chasins was introduced by Dean Duchow of the Faculty of Music and thanked by Dr. Blume. His was the first in the series of special lectures organized for the Faculty of Music by Dr. Ellen Ballon.

Mr. Chasins felt that the men of culture in our society were being overlooked by our politicians. He said that it was "apalling" that they failed to realize that "artists can rush in where statesmen fear to tread." Concrete measures for furthering culture are mostly a matter of "lip service". All that is usually done is "a little pious vapourizing."

It is practically impossible, said Mr. Chasins, for our composers today to advance or earn a living. The people who are in the music business and who control the careers of musicians, composers and interpreters, are not interested in music, only in the business of music. Such is the very dismal picture for our present artists.

There were times, he went on, when the world offered tremendous psychological compensations to the artist. That is not the case in our present "dynamic economy". Today, people who get from the world are more greatly res-

Iranian Diplomat Discusses Politics At Union Today

Persian-born Dr. Nasrollah Saifpour Fatemi will speak today on "Psychosomatic Politics of the Middle East" at 1 pm in the Union Ballroom.

Dr. Fatemi, a direct descendant of the Prophet Mohammed, is now a Professor of Social Science at Fairleigh Dickenson University. He has had an active career as statesman, diplomat, author and educator.

Dr. Fatemi graduated from Stuart Memorial College in Iran with honours. He received his M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Columbia University and the New School for Social Research.

In addition to five books in Persian, he is the author of two books in English: "Diplomatic History of Persia" and "Oil Diplomacy". He also took part in the preparation of the article on Islam published by Life Magazine in its series, "World's Great Religions".

At present Dr. Fatemi is busy on two research projects sponsored by Fairleigh Dickinson University, "The Economic Development of the Middle East" and "Nationalism in the Muslim World".

WUS Secretary Resigns Position

The Assistant Secretary of WUS in Canada has announced her resignation.

Due to her plans to resume academic work, Miss Jane Banfield recently indicated that she will not seek re-appointment when her present contract expires this summer.

Miss Banfield joined the executive staff of WUS in June 1955 and since then has played a major part in the development of that organization's programme and activities.

Applications are now being invited for the position of Assistant Secretary from suitably qualified men or women who are University graduates.

Student Devours Campus Newspaper In Political Wager

EDMONTON (CUP) — A student at the University of Alberta today defended his honour by eating a copy of the campus newspaper.

This action was dictated by a wager made several weeks ago over the outcome of the Model Parliament elections which were yet to be contested. Participants in the bargain were the Social Credit Leader, Bill Downton, and the Conservatives' top dog, Marc Berzins.

When the results of the election were recently published, the Conservatives had emerged victorious and Downton was duty bound to fulfill the requirements of the bet.

Although several of the victors offered to free him from the bonds of the wager, Downton insisted on carrying through his promises.

Thus one copy of the "Gateway", the university's paper, was consumed before a large turnout yesterday.

Of slight consolation to the winner was the decision of the Conservatives to allow him to consume pickles, buttermilk, ketchup or water with his tasty nemesis.

Crack That Academic Whip

The recent announcement on the lenghtening of the academic year is the first of what will probably be a series of steps to tighten standards of education on this old and revered campus.

The blunt fact that hopefuls for college education will have to face in the near future is that standards are going to be raised and the emphasis will be on intellectualism. The pendulum seems to be swinging strongly towards a philosophy of "education for the brilliant" in reaction to what many educators call the rampant anti-intellectualism that has characterised much of the North American academic system.

Much comparison is being made these days between the European youth and his American counterpart. It is felt that the former goes through a more rigourous, selective, and demanding system which does more to develop intellectualism. While the North American youth is considered more practical and as having a better balanced personality, the "soft educational system has put their brains to sleep".

Whether these stereotypes are true we are not competent to say though it is obvious, we should think, that the New World has been doing very well in contributing to progress culture and thought in this century. Undoubtedly, however, there is much that can be done to raise our educational standards, to weed out laggards, to separate the technical school elements from the university proper, and to give opportunity and incentive to genius.

Within the physical limits that are practicable we are all for raising the academic standards at McGill, increasing the demands on students in Arts and Sciences particularly, and generally encouraging that aura of intellectualism that will make McGill somewhat more than the glorified high school that it is for too many students at present.

A Not-So-Rude Awakening

Lovers of music and haters of toothpaste commercials will be overjoyed at the news that the CBC has seen fit to reinstate its program of early-morning music. "Preview", that gobbledy-gook of news and bits of music and chat and insufferably pompous commercials has been given a well-deserved permanent vacation, and good music will once again soothe sleepy Montrealers in that difficult transition period between blissful sleep and harsh awakened reality. The getting-up period is perhaps the most treacherous of the day and anything that can be done to facilitate the unpleasant process of opening the eyes and the day, and of having to leave the motherwarmth of the bed is welcomed. The CBC music makes the whole sordid business seem less repulsive — the usually happy sounds which emanate from the radio promise that there is something more to life than having to get to lectures or work on time or wondering what should I wear today.

There was a lot of pressure put on the Corporation to bring the music back and take the toothpaste away. To the people who complained so bitterly and vehemently the program seemed to mean more than just pleasant sounds in the early-morning. It seemed to represent a bit of sanity somehow — something that was right in a world where many things were wrong. Before the day's rat-race began, there was a quiet uncerebral moment of musical ease which would make the day's activities seem less outrageous. The music gave a feeling of luxury to anyone who listened — it was delight at a time when the need to be delighted wasn't obvious, and simplicity when nothing else would do as well. The music is back, and the longhairs have won a victory over encroaching noise, the discs have mercifully replaced their jockeys, all is well with the world, at least between 7 am. and 9.

Canadians? Ain't No Such Animal

Sir:

In answering to C.M.'s search for Canadians, I would like to say don't look for any because there are no such persons.

From what I can make out, people living in the western provinces call themselves "Westerners". Newfoundlanders are proud of their province not as much, but as their native land and they don't seem to care what happens anywhere else. Ontarians are what they like to call "New British". Go into Ontario and see for yourself. Toronto has more British flags than London and its streets are a museum of British fame.

In all provinces, people feel prouder of some kind of descendent than being part of their own nationality.

Quebec represents that fact and if there are any Canadians in Canada, the Quebec villages will provide them for you.

These people are repulsed by the general word "Français" of France. They despise the fact that Britain plays a role in Canada, however unimportant it may be, and they would gladly reject them completely if given the opportunity to do so. This explains I think, the fuss over the name "Queen Elizabeth" of the new C.N.R. hotel. Since nobody else feels like they do in Canada, they make Quebec their country, with its flag, its national song, its own strong government and they call themselves "Canadians".

If you understand this, you could easily explain all government actions that are usually criticized.

If the government and the people of Canada would only give a little bit of their time in settling Canadian affairs instead of external affairs, Westerners, Newfoundlanders, Ontarians and Quebecers would join to form a country that would no longer be a colony. There my friend you will find Canadians.

Cricket Anyone?

Sir,

Through your medium we would like to publicly endorse Mr. Mike Berry's promotion of cricket at McGill.

The McGill West Indian Society won the Championship of the Montreal and District Cricket League the last year we played. We were forced to withdraw from the league for the new library was constructed and its windows would have been a natural target.

The gym said that they were unable to supply us with a field to play. McGill will need home grounds in order to participate in this league.

In our tradition of active participation in campus activities we willingly offer our support and further will challenge any campus group at the ancient art of the tea and crumpets spat.

Oswald Harding,
President, McGill West Indian Society

Thank You

Sir:

Through the columns of your paper, on behalf of the India Students Association, I wish to thank the Students' Society and all those friends who helped in the successful celebration of India Republic Day, January 25, 1958.

I also wish to convey our sincere thanks to the members of Pakistan Club, for their kind and warm greetings extended to our Association on Republic Day.

Statistics Reveal Canadian Student

Canada has a lower average of college-age students attending university than any other western hemisphere nation enjoying a similar standard of living.

This fact was recently released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in its preliminary report on the subject.

The report went on to state that Canadian students spend, on the average, $1,215 during the college year, those away from home using only two to three hundred dollars more than those residing at home.

Of the number included in the survey (which covered thirty-four colleges and universities), thirty-two per cent were receiving some sort of student aid.

The typical student is twenty years of age, single, and in his second year. His home is in the same city as the university or, alternatively in another city of 30,000 or over approximately two to three hundred miles away.

Summer savings average $449. Of the faculties sampled, the students in Medicine and law fared the best.

Dentist Shortage Becomes Acute In Canada and U.S.A.

According to figures recently released by the Canadian Dental Association, a shortage of dentists exists in Canada and the U.S.

The release went on to state that, judging from the size of enrolment below the senior year, it appears that there will be a decrease in the number of dentists graduating in the next few years, instead of the increase Canada needs.

The report states that last year there was one dentist for every 2,934 people in Canada, and in the U.S. one for about every 1,700 people.

We are getting more of everything but quality, he stated. "Hi-fi, with its idiotic emphasis on super-super decibels seems to be preparing for a generation of dogs."

Mr. Chasins suggested that we react tangibly by supporting worthy cultural projects and withdrawing support from the unworthy. Said he, "Now is the time for us to make our prayers known. Now is the time for the soverign individual to rise and yell out what we as people want."

Australian Visitor Confirms Troubles In Aussie Schools

Australia is also experiencing problems in the realm of higher education.

This fact was recently discussed by Miss Iris Wilcock, sub-Dean of the Arts Faculty at the University of Melbourne. Miss Wilson is presently visiting McGill on a Carnegie Corporation Grant.

Universities "down under" are expanding so rapidly that library, laboratory, and classroom facilities cannot keep pace; classes are becoming so large that lecturers must use microphones and loud-speakers. The supply of qualified teachers is also seriously inadequate.

A special committee considering the problem has recommended higher salaries for professors.

At present more than half of the nearly 8000 students attending the University of Melbourne are receiving some form of assistance.

STUDENT DIRECTORIES

Students are reminded that the Student Directories are still available in some of the campus buildings and in the Tuck Shop. Cost of each is 35¢.

Surgery Succeeds Geoffrion Recovers

As the Daily went to press last night, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion was fighting for his life in a hospital ward.

Rushed to the hospital by ambulance yesterday morning after the Canadiens finished their practice. Geoffrion was attended to by a priest during the afternoon and early evening.

He underwent a serious operation last night, the nature of which has not been disclosed as yet. It is believed to have been an exploratory surgery in the stomach.

Frank Selke Jr. of the Forum publicity staff said that Geoffrion was the victim of a freak accident. During scrimmage, while carrying the puck out of his own end of the rink, Geoffrion lost the puck to Andre Pronovost at centre ice. He turned around to chase Pronovost and when the latter stopped quickly, Geoffrion ran into him at full speed.

Geoffrion regained the puck and skated back of his own goal where he suddenly collapsed in severe pain.

Races And Comedy Featured At Pool

Saturday, February 1st at 8:30 pm marks another grudge match between the McGill Redmen Swimming team and Montreal's C.A.S.A. All Stars. A large number of McGill's Squad usually consists of former members of the latter team. This year is more rule than exception making for an exciting night of competition.

Treaturous Opposition

Yvonne Blanchette, holder of the Provincial 200 backstroke record, and Jacques Corbeil, three-time winner of the Canadian 440 and 220 freestyle both present a respected threat in favour of la Palestre Nationale. Lorne Jacobs of the Davis Y broke the Canadian Jr. 100 butterfly record by 6/10 sec. last summer. Steve Rabinovitch, also of the Davis Y, will attempt to defeat his brother Alec of McGill in the 100 breast stroke. Richard Pound is the up and coming hope for the M.A.A.A. The biggest threat offered by the All Stars is their medley relay team which knocked an incredible 54 seconds off the Canadian record last year at Vancouver.

The big guns for McGill this year include Cameron Grout, Pete Rutherford, Pete Capelovitch, and Jim Gaston. Cameron Grout, who holds seven Canadian records, is expected to turn out a solid performance. Pete Rutherford, workhorse of the McGill team, will undoubtedly startle the spectators with his dazzling display of speed in the butterfly and backstroke. Pete Capelovitch will push for records in the breast stroke, while Jim Gaston will handle the gruelling 440 freestyle. Warman Castle, who has improved sensationally since last year, will be in there fighting for the breast stroke titles. John Buchner, Mike Easdon, A. Gordon, and A.S. Yetter have been jockeying for a chance at the 100 freestyle slot. Ian Semple will probably come through for old McGill in the 220 freestyle. Coach Ross Firth is counting on Ed Adelson to lend some of his uncanny speed to the freestyle relay.

Diving Attraction

In the diving department Canadian champion J. Anderson and teammate Dan Mackie will tackle the All Stars' Gerry Fyfe and Bernie Valois. This event should prove to be the most fascinating spectator-wise as Anderson flits through the air with seemingly effortless grace. Fyfe and Valois, both runners up in recent Canadian Championships, are intent on destroying Anderson's immovable reputation.

Excitement will be the key word as members of both teams are preparing frantically for the British Empire Games Trials to be held at the Sir Arthur Currie Pool during the first week of April.

Skin Diving

A display of skin diving equipment will be shown in the John Turner Bone Room by the International Skin Diving Corporation. A demonstration of modern techniques in underwater swimming will be presented in the swimming pool immediately following the Clown Diving.

Harold Moody and Bill Bonney will face each other too and contest their badminton skills. The Women's Archery Team will perform in the Rifle Range while several members of the squash team will be in the squash courts.

In the Swimming pool a meet between McGill and the C.A.S.A. All-Stars will take place. During the half-time break a synchronized swimming routine, "Royal Bridge will be performed by Sally Boyd, Judy Rochester, Pauline McCullagh and Rose Rochman. An excellent clown-diving display will be witnessed. An exhibition never before shown at Athletics Night will be displayed during half time in the Turner Bone Room. This is an exhibition of Skin Diving equipment. The Female displays will adequately supplement the male exhibitions and will include something of interest for one and all.

McGILL SQUASH TEAM TO BE CHOSEN: The Women's Squash Tournament will take place this evening at 7:30. Anyone interested in entering the competition must be at the courts before 7:30 to be included in the draw. The McGill Team will be chosen from the results of the tournament which will be run by Winona Harvey. The Team will have four regular members and one or two substitute players. Ann McNally is the only carry-over from last year's team since all the other members graduated. The Team will play a Home and Home series with the M.A.A.A. and M.B. & S.C. in February.

SKATING TRYOUTS FOR CARNIVAL DO NOT CANCEL FREE SKATING: Tryouts and rehearsals for the chorus line in the Forum Night of Carnival Weekend are under way. Choregraphy is under the excellent directorship of Bev Chafe, a University of Manitoba graduate who has directed a number of shows in Manitoba. All are invited to come up to the arena on Saturday mornings from 10-12 to try out or watch the practices. Free skating is not discontinued so all figure skaters not interested in the performance are still welcome.

"MARLINETTES" PLACE SECOND: The McGill Marlinettes Swimming Club placed second in the Dempsy Tropey Competition in Quebec City on Saturday. The Club was represented by: Claire Tucker and Judy Barlow doing their duet "Les gais bouffons" and Ann Hamilton doing some figures. Miss Bean accompanied the Club. The Meet was won by the Quebec City Y.M.C.A. Club.

Conflicting Ideals Must Be Settled

Callard States That Both Sides Have Weapons, Both Anxious For Security

Nuclear control is impossible at the present time; we first need to narrow the ideological conflicts between the two blocs.

So stated Professor Keith Callard in a Debating Union talk and panel discussion on disarmament held yesterday at noon.

Professor Callard went on to explain that in 1946 the United States had the nuclear weapons, while Russia had the land forces, Consequently Russia feared disarmament as impeding their knowledge af atomic energy. Today both sides have weapons, and both want security first, then equality.

"We are afraid of Russian military power and want time to catch up," said Phil de Zwirek, a member of the Panel. "Proposals in the UN and the Subcommittee on Disarmament have failed because neither side has any faith in the other."

According to Professor Callard, present propositions would include restrictions on specific nuclear weapons and demilitarization of certain geographical areas. Inspection of atomic resources is not valid because only tests, not stockpiles, can be detected.

Demilitarization such as that advocated by George Kennan, former U.S. ambassador to Russia, would be of unknown value to both East and West, according to Brahm Campbell. Zafar Khan added that Kennan's proposal was worth considering, but that secrecy should be maintained in disarmament talks. Campbell replied that conferences already held and kept secret have not been successful.

"The West is bankrupt in policy", he said. "We need revitalization of the Disarmament Committee and the Subcommittee on Disarmament."

Phil Belitsky was chairman of the discussion.

Industrial Expert Speaks In Union On Management

Mr. Jack Howlett will address the McGill Chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management today.

A few years later, he was appointed Production Supervisor for CFCF and subsequently he became Program Manager. In the spring of last year, Mr. Howlett became the Assistant Manager of the Industrial Relations Division at Canadian Marconi.

Mr. Howlett is a Director of the Canadian Industrial Trainers' Association and a Seminar Leader in Executive Selection for the American Management Association. Cokes and donuts will be served at the meeting. All students are invited to attend.

Knowles Predicts Election In Spring

TORONTO (CUP) — Stanley Knowles M.P., speaking in a debate at the University of Toronto, prophesied a Dominion election not later than April.

Mr. Knowles, CCF member for Winnipeg North, was supporting the resolution." The CCF is the only logical alternative to the present federal government".

He expects Diefenbaker to take the initiative after Pearson's "thoroughly undemocratic move" in asking for a Liberal Government without a general election.

Knowles further predicted that the Conservatives would win the next election, but would still lack a majority.

Culture Ignored In This Dynamic Day

Emphasis On Production; Artists Lack Support And Prestige, States Chasins

"Today the intellectual is regarded by the few with respect. The rest call him "Egghead"; for their norms are power and money."

So spoke Mr. Abram Chasins, noted pianist, composer, and author-critic last night in Moyse Hall.

Addressing an audience of over 200, Mr. Chasins went on to say, "What I actually believe is that music is a symbol — a symbol of all the emotional, spiritual, and intellectual forces that make this world worth living and fighting for, and that while history is in the making, history itself is often ignored."

The topic of his talk was "The Place of Music and Musicians in a Nuclear Age." Mr. Chasins was introduced by Dean Duchow of the Faculty of Music and thanked by Dr. Blume. His was the first in the series of special lectures organized for the Faculty of Music by Dr. Ellen Ballon.

Mr. Chasins felt that the men of culture in our society were being overlooked by our politicians. He said that it was "apalling" that they failed to realize that "artists can rush in where statesmen fear to tread." Concrete measures for furthering culture are mostly a matter of "lip service". All that is usually done is "a little pious vapourizing."

It is practically impossible, said Mr. Chasins, for our composers today to advance or earn a living. The people who are in the music business and who control the careers of musicians, composers and interpreters, are not interested in music, only in the business of music. Such is the very dismal picture for our present artists.

There were times, he went on, when the world offered tremendous psychological compensations to the artist. That is not the case in our present "dynamic economy". Today, people who get from the world are more greatly res-

WUS Secretary Resigns Position

The Assistant Secretary of WUS in Canada has announced her resignation.

Due to her plans to resume academic work, Miss Jane Banfield recently indicated that she will not seek re-appointment when her present contract expires this summer.

Miss Banfield joined the executive staff of WUS in June 1955 and since then has played a major part in the development of that organization's programme and activities.

Applications are now being invited for the position of Assistant Secretary from suitably qualified men or women who are University graduates.

Student Devours Campus Newspaper In Political Wager

EDMONTON (CUP) — A student at the University of Alberta today defended his honour by eating a copy of the campus newspaper.

This action was dictated by a wager made several weeks ago over the outcome of the Model Parliament elections which were yet to be contested. Participants in the bargain were the Social Credit Leader, Bill Downton, and the Conservatives' top dog, Marc Berzins.

When the results of the election were recently published, the Conservatives had emerged victorious and Downton was duty bound to fulfill the requirements of the bet.

Although several of the victors offered to free him from the bonds of the wager, Downton insisted on carrying through his promises.

Thus one copy of the "Gateway", the university's paper, was consumed before a large turnout yesterday.

Of slight consolation to the winner was the decision of the Conservatives to allow him to consume pickles, buttermilk, ketchup or water with his tasty nemesis.

Crack That Academic Whip

The recent announcement on the lenghtening of the academic year is the first of what will probably be a series of steps to tighten standards of education on this old and revered campus.

The blunt fact that hopefuls for college education will have to face in the near future is that standards are going to be raised and the emphasis will be on intellectualism. The pendulum seems to be swinging strongly towards a philosophy of "education for the brilliant" in reaction to what many educators call the rampant anti-intellectualism that has characterised much of the North American academic system.

Much comparison is being made these days between the European youth and his American counterpart. It is felt that the former goes through a more rigourous, selective, and demanding system which does more to develop intellectualism. While the North American youth is considered more practical and as having a better balanced personality, the "soft educational system has put their brains to sleep".

Whether these stereotypes are true we are not competent to say though it is obvious, we should think, that the New World has been doing very well in contributing to progress culture and thought in this century. Undoubtedly, however, there is much that can be done to raise our educational standards, to weed out laggards, to separate the technical school elements from the university proper, and to give opportunity and incentive to genius.

Within the physical limits that are practicable we are all for raising the academic standards at McGill, increasing the demands on students in Arts and Sciences particularly, and generally encouraging that aura of intellectualism that will make McGill somewhat more than the glorified high school that it is for too many students at present.

A Not-So-Rude Awakening

Lovers of music and haters of toothpaste commercials will be overjoyed at the news that the CBC has seen fit to reinstate its program of early-morning music. "Preview", that gobbledy-gook of news and bits of music and chat and insufferably pompous commercials has been given a well-deserved permanent vacation, and good music will once again soothe sleepy Montrealers in that difficult transition period between blissful sleep and harsh awakened reality. The getting-up period is perhaps the most treacherous of the day and anything that can be done to facilitate the unpleasant process of opening the eyes and the day, and of having to leave the motherwarmth of the bed is welcomed. The CBC music makes the whole sordid business seem less repulsive — the usually happy sounds which emanate from the radio promise that there is something more to life than having to get to lectures or work on time or wondering what should I wear today.

There was a lot of pressure put on the Corporation to bring the music back and take the toothpaste away. To the people who complained so bitterly and vehemently the program seemed to mean more than just pleasant sounds in the early-morning. It seemed to represent a bit of sanity somehow — something that was right in a world where many things were wrong. Before the day's rat-race began, there was a quiet uncerebral moment of musical ease which would make the day's activities seem less outrageous. The music gave a feeling of luxury to anyone who listened — it was delight at a time when the need to be delighted wasn't obvious, and simplicity when nothing else would do as well. The music is back, and the longhairs have won a victory over encroaching noise, the discs have mercifully replaced their jockeys, all is well with the world, at least between 7 am. and 9.

Canadians? Ain't No Such Animal

Sir:

In answering to C.M.'s search for Canadians, I would like to say don't look for any because there are no such persons.

From what I can make out, people living in the western provinces call themselves "Westerners". Newfoundlanders are proud of their province not as much, but as their native land and they don't seem to care what happens anywhere else. Ontarians are what they like to call "New British". Go into Ontario and see for yourself. Toronto has more British flags than London and its streets are a museum of British fame.

In all provinces, people feel prouder of some kind of descendent than being part of their own nationality.

Quebec represents that fact and if there are any Canadians in Canada, the Quebec villages will provide them for you.

These people are repulsed by the general word "Français" of France. They despise the fact that Britain plays a role in Canada, however unimportant it may be, and they would gladly reject them completely if given the opportunity to do so. This explains I think, the fuss over the name "Queen Elizabeth" of the new C.N.R. hotel. Since nobody else feels like they do in Canada, they make Quebec their country, with its flag, its national song, its own strong government and they call themselves "Canadians".

If you understand this, you could easily explain all government actions that are usually criticized.

If the government and the people of Canada would only give a little bit of their time in settling Canadian affairs instead of external affairs, Westerners, Newfoundlanders, Ontarians and Quebecers would join to form a country that would no longer be a colony. There my friend you will find Canadians.

Cricket Anyone?

Sir,

Through your medium we would like to publicly endorse Mr. Mike Berry's promotion of cricket at McGill.

The McGill West Indian Society won the Championship of the Montreal and District Cricket League the last year we played. We were forced to withdraw from the league for the new library was constructed and its windows would have been a natural target.

The gym said that they were unable to supply us with a field to play. McGill will need home grounds in order to participate in this league.

In our tradition of active participation in campus activities we willingly offer our support and further will challenge any campus group at the ancient art of the tea and crumpets spat.

Oswald Harding,
President, McGill West Indian Society

Thank You

Sir:

Through the columns of your paper, on behalf of the India Students Association, I wish to thank the Students' Society and all those friends who helped in the successful celebration of India Republic Day, January 25, 1958.

I also wish to convey our sincere thanks to the members of Pakistan Club, for their kind and warm greetings extended to our Association on Republic Day.

Statistics Reveal Canadian Student

Canada has a lower average of college-age students attending university than any other western hemisphere nation enjoying a similar standard of living.

This fact was recently released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics in its preliminary report on the subject.

The report went on to state that Canadian students spend, on the average, $1,215 during the college year, those away from home using only two to three hundred dollars more than those residing at home.

Of the number included in the survey (which covered thirty-four colleges and universities), thirty-two per cent were receiving some sort of student aid.

The typical student is twenty years of age, single, and in his second year. His home is in the same city as the university or, alternatively in another city of 30,000 or over approximately two to three hundred miles away.

Summer savings average $449. Of the faculties sampled, the students in Medicine and law fared the best.

Dentist Shortage Becomes Acute In Canada and U.S.A.

According to figures recently released by the Canadian Dental Association, a shortage of dentists exists in Canada and the U.S.

The release went on to state that, judging from the size of enrolment below the senior year, it appears that there will be a decrease in the number of dentists graduating in the next few years, instead of the increase Canada needs.

The report states that last year there was one dentist for every 2,934 people in Canada, and in the U.S. one for about every 1,700 people.

pected than people who give to the world.

We are getting more of everything but quality, he stated. "Hi-fi, with its idiotic emphasis on super-super decibels seems to be preparing for a generation of dogs."

Mr. Chasins suggested that we react tangibly by supporting worthy cultural projects and withdrawing support from the unworthy. Said he, "Now is the time for us to make our prayers known. Now is the time for the soverign individual to rise and yell out what we as people want."

Australian Visitor Confirms Troubles In Aussie Schools

Australia is also experiencing problems in the realm of higher education.

This fact was recently discussed by Miss Iris Wilcock, sub-Dean of the Arts Faculty at the University of Melbourne. Miss Wilson is presently visiting McGill on a Carnegie Corporation Grant.

Universities "down under" are expanding so rapidly that library, laboratory, and classroom facilities cannot keep pace; classes are becoming so large that lecturers must use microphones and loud-speakers. The supply of qualified teachers is also seriously inadequate.

A special committee considering the problem has recommended higher salaries for professors.

At present more than half of the nearly 8000 students attending the University of Melbourne are receiving some form of assistance.

STUDENT DIRECTORIES

Students are reminded that the Student Directories are still available in some of the campus buildings and in the Tuck Shop. Cost of each is 35¢.

Surgery Succeeds Geoffrion Recovers

As the Daily went to press last night, Bernie (Boom Boom) Geoffrion was fighting for his life in a hospital ward.

Rushed to the hospital by ambulance yesterday morning after the Canadiens finished their practice. Geoffrion was attended to by a priest during the afternoon and early evening.

He underwent a serious operation last night, the nature of which has not been disclosed as yet. It is believed to have been an exploratory surgery in the stomach.

Frank Selke Jr. of the Forum publicity staff said that Geoffrion was the victim of a freak accident. During scrimmage, while carrying the puck out of his own end of the rink, Geoffrion lost the puck to Andre Pronovost at centre ice. He turned around to chase Pronovost and when the latter stopped quickly, Geoffrion ran into him at full speed.

Geoffrion regained the puck and skated back of his own goal where he suddenly collapsed in severe pain.

Races And Comedy Featured At Pool

Saturday, February 1st at 8:30 pm marks another grudge match between the McGill Redmen Swimming team and Montreal's C.A.S.A. All Stars. A large number of McGill's Squad usually consists of former members of the latter team. This year is more rule than exception making for an exciting night of competition.

Treaturous Opposition

Yvonne Blanchette, holder of the Provincial 200 backstroke record, and Jacques Corbeil, three-time winner of the Canadian 440 and 220 freestyle both present a respected threat in favour of la Palestre Nationale. Lorne Jacobs of the Davis Y broke the Canadian Jr. 100 butterfly record by 6/10 sec. last summer. Steve Rabinovitch, also of the Davis Y, will attempt to defeat his brother Alec of McGill in the 100 breast stroke. Richard Pound is the up and coming hope for the M.A.A.A. The biggest threat offered by the All Stars is their medley relay team which knocked an incredible 54 seconds off the Canadian record last year at Vancouver.

The big guns for McGill this year include Cameron Grout, Pete Rutherford, Pete Capelovitch, and Jim Gaston. Cameron Grout, who holds seven Canadian records, is expected to turn out a solid performance. Pete Rutherford, workhorse of the McGill team, will undoubtedly startle the spectators with his dazzling display of speed in the butterfly and backstroke. Pete Capelovitch will push for records in the breast stroke, while Jim Gaston will handle the gruelling 440 freestyle. Warman Castle, who has improved sensationally since last year, will be in there fighting for the breast stroke titles. John Buchner, Mike Easdon, A. Gordon, and A.S. Yetter have been jockeying for a chance at the 100 freestyle slot. Ian Semple will probably come through for old McGill in the 220 freestyle. Coach Ross Firth is counting on Ed Adelson to lend some of his uncanny speed to the freestyle relay.

Diving Attraction

In the diving department Canadian champion J. Anderson and teammate Dan Mackie will tackle the All Stars' Gerry Fyfe and Bernie Valois. This event should prove to be the most fascinating spectator-wise as Anderson flits through the air with seemingly effortless grace. Fyfe and Valois, both runners up in recent Canadian Championships, are intent on destroying Anderson's immovable reputation.

Excitement will be the key word as members of both teams are preparing frantically for the British Empire Games Trials to be held at the Sir Arthur Currie Pool during the first week of April.

Skin Diving

A display of skin diving equipment will be shown in the John Turner Bone Room by the International Skin Diving Corporation. A demonstration of modern techniques in underwater swimming will be presented in the swimming pool immediately following the Clown Diving.

SKI DAY SCHEDULED: McGill Women's Intramural Ski Meet will take place on Saturday Feb. 8 at Far Hills Inn, Val Morin.
